From the NOSS Writing Network:

An Open Letter to Writing Instructors:

Do you ever feel that no one understands what it's like to teach underprepared students how to produce college-level writing? Or do you feel that no one realizes how heavy your grading load is as a writing instructor? Then let me invite you to join the club, a.k.a., the NOSS Writing Network.

As members of this network, we encourage and inspire one another, exchange teaching tips and ideas, and share ways to lighten the load.

When you join the NOSS Writing Network, you will receive a newsletter each semester filled with practical suggestions on teaching writing. All of the articles are written entirely by our members for our members.

While these newsletters are helpful, nothing quite takes the place of meeting and visiting with each other in person. That opportunity occurs at the annual NOSSConference. In addition to seeing each other at the numerous sessions on teaching writing, there is a dedicated time when our network gets together to discuss current topics and issues specific to our roles as writing instructors.

Join us today.

Julia Laffoon-Jackson, Chair

CONSIDER PUBLISHING IN PRACTITIONER TO PRACTITIONER!

Do you have a best practice you'd like to share, but don't have the time to write a formal research paper?

Please consider sharing your idea and have it published in NOSS' Practitioner to Practitioner. NOSS encourages any practice that promotes student success! Guidelines can be found at thenoss.org, and then click onto library, Practitioner to Practitioner.

The goal of P-to-P is for practitioners to share and promote exciting programs, services, professional development opportunities, workshops, placement changes, courses, advising practices, student organizations, or summer programs – just some examples that have shown success.

Share. Together we can.
