MARK YOUR CALENDARS! WEBINAR WITH DR. VINCENT TINTO

October 3, 2018

From Retention to Completion: A Conversation with
Dr. Vincent Tinto

“To promote greater degree completion, institutions have to ask not only how they should act to retain their students, but also how they should act so that more of their students want to persist to completion.” To understand how to do so, colleges and universities have to adopt the student perspective and see their experiences through their eyes.”

Join NADE for a conversation with Dr. Vincent Tinto. The previous questions will be addressed as well as several submitted from NADE members. Time permitting, Dr. Tinto will answer your additional questions regarding student success and completion.

Don't miss out! This webinar will fill quickly!

SWADE Chapter Report by Lindsey Gerber

The annual Southwest Association for Developmental Education (SWADE) Conference [“Count Down to Take Off”] will be held at Utah Valley University in Orem, UT on Saturday, October 27, 2018. The Keynote Speaker is Russ Hodges, Ed.D. He is an Associate Professor in the Graduate Program in Developmental Education at Texas State University-San Marcos. His research interest includes college access, persistence and completion for underserved populations; postsecondary peer-support interventions; the role of learning frameworks courses in student persistence and completion; and developmental education policy.

In addition to the keynote speaker, we will have several faculty members from Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico and Nevada sharing their knowledge, techniques and research in the classroom. Please plan to attend and join us at the 24th Annual SWADE Conference.

GRADE Chapter Report by Mandy Wright

The Greater Rockies Association for Developmental Education (GRADE) executive board is working to revitalize our chapter. As the national move to reform remediation has shifted higher education’s focus on supporting developmental students, the state of developmental education in Montana and our region continues to change.

Many institutions in Montana have adopted co-requisite models for developmental math and writing, which has changed the nature of both our classrooms and our jobs. As a result, the necessity of a regional developmental education organization seemed unclear.

In reality, developmental educators, regardless of the initiatives or instructional models we adhere to, need support. We need opportunities to connect and understand our individual and shared experiences in a changing educational landscape. We need time and space to share ideas, find solutions to challenges, and continue to develop as professionals.

We hope to position our chapter as an organization dedicated to supporting the important networking and professional development that developmental educators continue to need and deserve. Current and past members will soon receive updates from our executive board regarding future conference planning and networking opportunities.

We serve Montana, Idaho, and the Dakotas. Anyone interested in membership or seeking more information about our chapter is invited to email GRADE president Mandy Wright at mandy.wright@gfcmu.edu. Please visit our website at www.devedgrade.org.
